Department of Sociology, University of North Texas

While there have been many charges of anti-Christian bias in academia, it has not been systematically demonstrated – until now. In this lecture, Dr. George Yancey will illustrate data that confirms the reality of an anti-Christian bias in academia. After which, the sub-culture that drives anti-Christian bias will be discussed with an effort to understand the origin of this prejudice. Lastly, possible implications of this bias within the context of research will be examined. This presentation is based on Dr. Yancey's research and will refer to his most recent publications.
